

VICTORIA POLICE

Message from the Chief Commissioner of Police

2019 African Music and Cultural Festival 14 December 2019

Victoria Police is proud to support the 2019 African Music and Cultural Festival. The organisers should be proud, and the quality of artists that will feature, provides an insight into the culture and diverse talents that make up Victoria's African communities.

The Festival is a showcase event in the African-Australian cultural calendar. Music, dancing, arts, and food are available for us to enjoy. This is a testament to the hard work of all the African communities involved, who through their efforts are building a better understanding of their rich history and culture.

At Victoria Police we strive to develop a workforce that reflects community diversity. Victoria Police embraces inclusion and I encourage all individuals of African background, among others, to consider a career with Victoria Police. The recently formed Victoria Police African Employee Network represents just one example of our commitment to building a culturally responsive workforce.

Congratulations and enjoy the day.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Graham Ashton', is positioned above the printed name.

Graham Ashton AM
Chief Commissioner